

Michael Doyle, Harold Brown Professor of United States Foreign and Security Policy at Columbia University, speaks on “Preventive Self-Defense” on Oct. 19, 2006, at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies. Doyle also worked for two years as special advisor to U.N. Secretary General Kofi Annan.

Mershon Center 2006-07 Post-Doctoral Fellow Jason Parker (left) speaks with Michael Doyle during a reception after the lecture. Doyle is an expert on comparative peacekeeping, international ethics, global governance and conflict resolution.

(Left to right) Allan Silverman, Professor of Philosophy, talks with Michael Doyle and Richard Gunther, Professor of Political Science, at a reception after the lecture. Doyle's talk was part of the Mershon Center's Citizenship Speaker Series, which Silverman organizes.